

CALL FOR PAPERS

Journal of Systemic Therapies is committed to publishing manuscripts that address the practices and research of systemic, postmodern, and social constructionist therapies with children, youth, families, and communities. The journal fully supports diversity, equity, and inclusion and welcome manuscripts that are culturally relevant and that address a range of social justice issues.

General Submissions

General Submission manuscripts are invited from practitioners, whether they are consulting with people directly, teaching students, supervising therapists, consulting with colleagues, or working with communities. Articles describing innovative ideas and practices or presenting instructive case studies are encouraged.

Submit General Submissions to:

Editor: Jim Duvall jimduvall@jstinstitute.com

Special Sections

A Special Section is comprised of three thematically coherent manuscripts plus an introduction. A Guest Editor works with our Special Sections Editor to prepare the Special Section manuscripts for publication.

Submit topics for a Special Section to:

Special Sections Editor: Anne Rambo rambo@nova.edu

Please c.c. all submissions to Assistant Editor Pat Shelenko pat_shelenko@yahoo.ca

The Journal of Systemic Therapies is a peer-reviewed journal that was first released in 1981. Since that time many pioneers and practitioners have published seminal and innovative ideas in the journal, and it has evolved into a significant resource for mental health, social service, and educational professionals.
